

National Institute of Justice

Award Title: Site-Adaptive Face Recognition at a Distance
Award Description: GE will develop a site-adaptive approach to face recognition at a distance, for use in criminal justice and homeland security applications. They will develop a face recognition engine that continuously adapts to the changing imaging conditions of a specific site. This development and evaluation effort will optimize face recognition at a distance could lead to the adoption of new tools and technologies for use by local law enforcement agencies. ca/ncf
Awardee Name: General Electric Company	Award Number: 2007-DE-BX-K191
Solicitation Title: NIJ FY 07 Biometrics Technologies: Invited Full Proposals	Fiscal Year: 2007
Amount: $496,341.00	Earmark: No
Recovery Act: No	State/Territory: NY
County: Schenectady	Congressional District: 21
Award Status: Closed	